Things to Love About Oak Forest

- Oak Forest is located in near northwest Houston just north of Loop 610.
- It's a charming community developed by Frank Sharp, a forward thinking real estate developer in 1946. Construction of what would become one of Houston's largest neighborhoods was developed and then sold to veterans coming home from World War II.
- Oak Forest was developed with ample acreage set aside for churches and schools.
- Sharp also planned for Oak Forest to have several of its own parks for residents to enjoy, resulting in the creation of Candelight, American Legion, Oak Forest and T.C. Jester parks.
- The many businesses on 43rd Street are a result of Frank Sharp's original vision for the Oak Forest community.
- Today Oak Forest is flourishing with updates, renovations or expansions to the original homes and many are choosing to build much larger modern homes in their place.
- Many parks, schools, places of worship and ease of access to the rest of Houston make Oak Forest a great place.
- Where else can you walk to the park, the grocery store, your child's school, your church, plus have access to Downtown or The Galleria in less than 10 minutes... and still have a huge yard? That is why many people call Oak Forest home.
